

Everyday gratefuls

So apart from having an awesome baby, lately life has been more on the not so fun side.

Of course I'm permanently tired because of the baby - but thats kind of a given so I'm over that.

Its mostly because I'm not at home because of the renovations dragging on. What was meant to be a few days at Mum and Dad's out of the dust and noise has dragged into about six weeks. The man doesn't stay out here much and we usually see him only for a couple of hours a night then he's home to bed and work the next day.

Now I'm not upset about where I'm staying and its great that Mum and Dad have got to spend so much time with little man, that they wouldn't have otherwise had - and I can't thank them enough for everything they're doing for us. But its not home and I miss the man. I feel like we are living in limbo and I just want to get home.

Its getting me down because I just feel like I'm whinging all the time.

So for this week we're giving positivity a try! I thought a good way to start would be by doing #everydaygratefuls, everyday I will post something I am grateful for. I will also try to generally be more positive!

So today I am grateful for the smiles and fun I had in the car with little man while we were driving home from Berrigan this morning. Note the wet strap..he likes gumming on it!

- Jen