

Thanks Mr Postman

Either I am super lucky lately or couriers have stepped up their service but the last few times I have bought something online it has turned up the next morning.

Yesterday at lunchtime I bought a pair of shoes online and this morning at 8am a courier delivered them to my door!

How awesome is that!! Three weeks ago the same thing happened, I bought a new bike light online and it turned up the next morning!! Gen Y's like me constantly battle the need to have something immediately vs having to pay more for it than if we bought it online and now it's not 'quite' immediate but it's good enough for me!!

How good is that!! Tell me, is it just me or is this the norm now?
